To Whom It May Concern:

It gives me great pleasure to write this letter in support of Shelley Costello, a highly qualified, fully capable, nationally known speaker, facilitator, minister and presenter. Her dynamic teaching style, positive delivery and excitement are just three of the many attributes you would benefit from, when engaging her services.

Over the past nine years Ms. Costello has engaged as a speaker, media specialists, minister and radio personality, Ms. Costello's audiences have typically consisted of corporations, large and small businesses, churches and non-profit organizations. She brings a refreshing edge to a variety of topics geared at employee motivation, business development and training, sales and fundraising, religious and youth formats, as well as customized programs. I had the privilege of sharing the speaking stage with Ms. Costello, along with other world renowned speakers, at a non-profit charity event for the fight against Autism in March, 2007.

Ms. Costello, with a background in sales & marketing, as magazine publisher, writer, author of two books, radio producer and host of her own talk show, she will gladly customize a training program or presentation in the areas of Media Promotions, sales, customer relations and leadership to suit your corporation or organization's needs.

Whether as a keynote speaker or a training facilitator, Shelley Costello's messages are designed to challenge one's mind, in preparation for greatness. Therefore, I enthusiastically recommend her as your speaker of choice. Any other information I can provide for you about her, please contact me.

Sincerely,

Les Brown
